Sachin Tendulkar's timeless advice for rising star Sooryavanshi after defeat vs GT

NEW DELHI. (Agency)

The cricketing world is talking about Vaibhav Sooryavanshi. The teenage sensation's six-hitting prowess has been relentlessly knocking on the doors of the Indian selectors, at this point, it is no longer a knock but a forceful push toward a historic India call-up. Amid the growing clamour around the Rajasthan Royals star, Sachin Tendulkar offered a timeless piece of advice for the youngster as he continues his meteoric rise through the ranks. The cricket legend shared his thoughts after Sooryavanshi's record-breaking IPL 2026 campaign, which has propelled the Rajasthan Royals youngster into national-team conversations."I would tell him just be himself. There is always a first time, and in Test cricket, along with age, he will learn how to deal with various challenges," said Tendulkar at the ESPNcricinfo honours. "He looks like a player who is very confident and very sure of what he wants to do. I wouldn't want to play around with his natural instincts because the way he sees the ball and the way he responds to that is special. If that signal is interrupted by putting a lot of hurdles in between and telling him multiple things, that's where the real challenge would be."The 15-year-old's extraordinary season, highlighted by 776 runs and a string of breathtaking six-hitting displays, has made him one of the most talked-about young cricketers in the country and earned him a place in the India A squad for the upcoming tri-series in Sri Lanka. Tendulkar further emphasized that the youngster should be allowed to express himself freely at the crease while developing other aspects of his game over time. "I would give him the freedom to go out and bat the way he does. Yes, along with time, he will learn to deal with other things and other challenges of the game," he added."I'm not a selector, but not just me, everyone would want to see him at some stage. I don't know when that is going to happen, but an exciting talent needs encouragement.

The FIFA World Cup is coming. India still doesn't know where to watch it Every four years, the FIFA World Cup turns India into a football-crazy nation, regardless of whether the national team is playing. Yet with kickoff around the corner, millions of fans found themselves waiting not for fixtures, but for a broadcaster.

New Delhi. (Agency)

Not hope of watching India playing in the FIFA World Cup, that dream is sitting separately somewhere.The hope of India enjoying the FIFA World Cup.For one month, the FIFA World Cup turns parts of India into little pockets of the footballing world. Streets fill with flags, jerseys to office after a messed up sleep schedules, everything is granted.Even your uncle who hasn't watched a single minute of club football all year suddenly becomes a tactical expert. He won't know who's top of La Liga, but he will absolutely ask for the Argentina score, stay up until 3:00 AM for a knockout match, and debate Messi vs. Ronaldo over morning chai.In a cricket-obsessed nation, the World Cup is football's reminder that India may not be part of the tournament, but it absolutely belongs to the audience.Which is why the uncertainty surrounding the FIFA World Cup 2026 broadcast rights has felt so bizarre.And, for many supporters, insulting.Not because Indian fans genuinely believe they will be left without a broadcaster when the tournament kicks off on June 11. Most understand that a deal will eventually happen. In fact, reports suggest Zee is now closing in on an agreement worth around USD 30-35 million, with an announcement potentially arriving within days.The frustration comes from something deeper. Football fans can see where this story is heading.They know that this whole chapter will leave a mark. They have seen it all before.Almost everyone has started predicting the implications beyond this World Cup.And once again, the people left waiting are the fans.WHAT A WORLD CUP MEANS TO INDIA

Football fandom in India has always been a fascinating contradiction.The country has never played at a FIFA World Cup. The domestic ecosystem remains terribly fragile along with the national team sitting miles away from football's biggest stage.Yet every four years, India behaves like a country that belongs at the tournament.Kolkata is perhaps the most famous example. During World Cup season, the city transforms into a football carnival. Entire neighbourhoods split themselves into Argentina and Brazil camps. Giant cut-outs of Messi, Neymar and Cristiano Ronaldo appear on roadsides. Local club rivalries are temporarily paused as supporters rally behind their adopted international teams.Then down in Mallapuram, where Argentina banners already line the roads.All of these examples are also reasons why the current situation feels so strange.Because while fans are preparing for the biggest World Cup in history, the business side of football has spent months arguing over who gets to show it.

THE NUMBERS WHICH STARTED THE WAR

The story gets way more frustrating the moment you follow the money.

What should have been a normal corporate paperwork exercise slowly turned into a massive, very public game of boardroom chicken. This mess left one of FIFA's most obsessed markets completely stranded without a confirmed broadcaster just days before the opening match.

IPL final RCB vs GT preview: Bengaluru chase era-defining sequel in Ahmedabad

NEW DELHI. (Agency)

If you had ventured near the concrete colossus of the Narendra Modi Stadium on Saturday, you would have been forgiven for believing the first ball was mere minutes away. Long before the floodlights could whisper into the fading twilight, a restless sea of red had already swallowed the concourses.

The IPL 2026 final between Gujarat Titans and Royal Challengers Bengaluru will start at 7 pm. Star Sports will telecast the final while livestreaming will be on JioHotstar in India.The air carried a rhythmic, almost desperate incantation that rose above the hum of the highway: "RCB, RCB." Beneath the scorching sun, vendors did not need to pitch their wares; only one currency mattered, and only one name was stitched across a thousand backs: Kohli, 18. Media crews hovered around the main gates like digital scavengers, hunting for the raw euphoria of fans who had arrived with nothing but a smartphone, a pocketful of hope, and a desperate prayer for a stray ticket.In November 2023, this very amphitheatre hosted a World Cup final between India and Australia. Yet, that historic afternoon felt strangely sterile by comparison. National pride is a duty; franchise tribalism, it seems, is a romance.What lingered outside the gates was a profound sense of vindication. For nearly two decades, to wear this red jersey was to invite ridicule, enduring a cruel economy of internet memes as the league's tragic, brittle romantics.

Miami's Haitian community celebrates the country's first World Cup berth in 52 years

MIAMI. (Agency)

Members of Miami's Haitian community pressed against a stage on a rainy Saturday to cheer on forward Duckens Nazon, defender Martin Experience and other members of the country's national soccer team ahead of a pair of friendly matches next week.For a few hours, nothing else mattered for the soccer-loving people of the troubled Caribbean country, which is playing in the World Cup for the first time in 52 years."We will show that we are united, no matter what," Nazon said in Creole, standing in front of a large Haitian flag commemorating Haitian Heritage Month, which is celebrated every May in the U.S."I want for this World Cup to be the beginning of a new Haiti," he said.

Since qualifying for the World Cup for only the second time in the country's history, players have vowed to represent hope and joy for the nation, which has been beset by crisis and instability.That pride was on display Saturday at an art museum in North Miami, which houses one of the largest Haitian populations in the United States. Fans draped themselves in Haitian flags and danced to upbeat compas music while children kicked around soccer balls at the small meet-and-greet.Many were in awe at seeing their country reach soccer's biggest stage again."At my age, I've listened and read about Haiti being in the World Cup in the 70s but never got a chance to see them play," said 49-year-old Odeline Paul, who has lived in Miami since she was 13. "It is such an amazing event to be here, at least to meet them, and to bring my son to be in this moment."Paul said she won't be able to attend any of Haiti's matches. Tickets are too expensive for her to go in person — a dilemma that many soccer fans are running into — but she'll attend one of the watch parties happening in Miami.

She brought her son to Saturday's event so he could learn about Haiti and its tense history.

"To teach about the culture, to teach about what it took for us to be in the World Cup.

Now to make it, no words can describe the feeling," Paul said."We are a people of resilience. It doesn't matter how many times we fall," she added."We always get up. And that's my country."The euphoria of the historic moment — Haiti's only other World Cup appearance was at the 1974 tournament in West Germany — has been amid the backdrop of the violence, hunger and homelessness that the country is grappling with.Armed gangs control up to 90% of its capital, Port-au-Prince, where the team's home stadium is located, forcing Haiti to play its "home" World Cup qualifiers in the tiny Dutch Caribbean island of Curaçao. And a U.S. visa for the squad's only Haiti-based player has yet to come through as the administration of President Donald Trump continues to expand travel restrictions from countries including Haiti.

10 arrested, including former MLA Asit Majumdar, after road blockade protesting alleged attack on Abhishek Banerjee

Hooghly : The police have arrested 10 people, including former Trinamool Congress (TMC) MLA Asit Majumdar, on charges of obstructing public duties and allegedly scuffling with police personnel during a protest in Hooghly district. The arrests, made on Sunday morning, have triggered fresh political controversy in the area.

According to reports, TMC workers staged a road blockade at Pipulpati in Hooghly on Saturday to protest the alleged attack on the party's National General Secretary and Diamond Harbour MP Abhishek Banerjee in Sonarpur. The demonstration was led by former Chinsurah MLA Asit Majumdar.

On Saturday, Abhishek Banerjee reportedly faced public protests while travelling to Sonarpur. Allegations surfaced that raw eggs, shoes and pieces of bricks were hurled at his convoy, while protesters raised "chor-chor" (thief-thief) slogans against him.

The TMC has further alleged that the situation turned violent and that Abhishek Banerjee was physically assaulted after his helmet was removed during the commotion.

In protest against the incident, TMC supporters blocked the road at Pipulpati. When police personnel arrived to clear the blockade and restore traffic movement, an argument reportedly broke out between the protesters and the police.
